

Lodging Virtual Payment

A Simpler and More Secure Way to Pay

Prepare for, monitor, and respond to potential threats, minimizing impact on personnel and operations.

It seems like every month a new security breach makes headlines. Because of this, companies are continuously searching for better ways to protect their financial data. This is where virtual payments come in.

By tying each transaction to a unique payment number, virtual payments enable companies to securely pay for their traveler's hotel room without the use of a credit card. And since each payment number can only be used once, virtual payment offer much tighter security than a traditional credit card. It also streamlines the check-in process by enabling companies to pay for their employees hotel rooms before they even walk in the lobby.
